

Republicans Carry 30 Districts as 88% of Vote Is Cast; Thompson Wins

Marching to the polls Tuesday in numbers that set a record for a gubernatorial election, Adams county voters gave the republican ticket unpredicted majorities that elected G. R. Thompson to the general assembly; helped Chester H. Gross displace Harry L. Haines as representative in congress from the York-Adams-Franklin district, and added from 1,700 to 3,100 votes to the state totals of the G.O.P. nominees for state offices.

More than 88 per cent of the registered voters of the county cast their ballots in Tuesday's election and carried 30 of the 42 voting districts for the state G.O.P. ticket. The democrats won in seven other districts and in the five remaining precincts results were too close to be regarded as decisive for either party.

United States Senator James J. Davis, re-elected in a sweeping victory over the state, led his ticket in Adams county with an unofficial total of 9,560 votes, while Governor Earle, his democrat opponent, trailed in the democratic returns with 6,462 votes. Senator Davis carried every district in Gettysburg, while the remainder of the G.O.P. slate lost the third ward but carried the three other voting districts in the county seat.

CONTROL OF PA. ASSEMBLY SPLIT BY TWO PARTIES

Harrisburg, Nov. 9 (AP)—Republicans gained control of the house of representatives by a wide margin today but lacked two senate seats to take over both branches of the legislature.

Complete returns gave the republicans a 48 majority in the house. The democrats retained a one-vote margin in the senate due to holdover senators whose terms have two years yet to run.

Governor-elect Arthur H. James thus faced the same situation of a (Continued on Page Two)

FIREMEN WILL PICK NOMINEES

The annual nomination of officers will be conducted this evening at the regular November meeting of the Gettysburg fire company to be held at 7 o'clock in the fire engine house on East Middle street. President James B. Aumen will preside over the session which has been listed as an important gathering and a special appeal made for members of the company to attend.

Company officers for 1939 will be elected in December.

In addition to the business of special importance, there is slated for this evening a highway safety talk by a state motor policeman continuing the series of safety talks being given before each of the 22 volunteer fire companies of the county at the suggestion of the county association. The speaker this evening will probably be Sergeant A. H. Shuler.

Special guests at the meeting this evening who have arranged a "treat" for the local firemen after the business session will include Frank Dean, Lancaster, and L. Ellis Wagner, York, former presidents of the state firemen's association; William Morgan, former state fire marshal, and John F. Young, York newspaper publisher.

S. S. Convention To Be Held In York Springs

The annual fall convention of the fifth district of the Adams County Sunday school association will be held at the York Springs Lutheran church, the Rev. Lester M. Utz, pastor, Saturday evening and Sunday morning and evening. Sessions will be held on Saturday at 7:30 p. m., and on Sunday at 9:15 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., respectively.

Among the speakers will be Dr. G. E. Schaler, of the Evangelical press, Harrisburg; Dr. M. R. Hamsher, Harrisburg, president of the Central Pennsylvania synod, and the Rev. H. E. Ressler, York.

STATE BOND FILED

The administration bond in the estate of the late Luella J. Weaver, Gettysburg, has been placed on file at the office of Register Quintin D. Rebert at the court house by a son, Rufus M. Weaver, Washington, D. C., the administrator.

LEGION PARADE SET FOR 2:30 ON ARMISTICE DAY

Complete arrangements for the observance of Armistice Day in Gettysburg were announced today by Frank J. Slonaker, chairman of the committee from the Albert J. Lentz post, No. 202, of the American Legion in charge of the local celebration.

Twenty years of peace since the close of the World war will be marked here with a street parade Friday afternoon in which veterans' and musical organizations will take part and exercises will be held in the National cemetery.

Owen B. Hunt, who is a World war veteran and present commissioner of insurance of Pennsylvania, will be the principal speaker at exercises to be conducted at the rotunda where the Legion ritual service will be read by Lentz post officers.

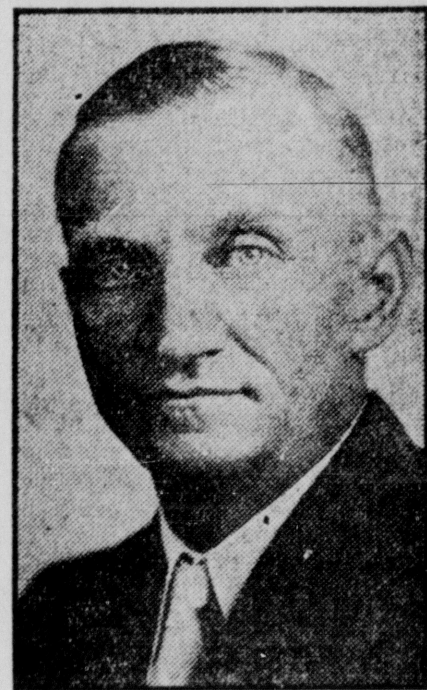

To Decorate Lentz Grave

Before the formal ceremonies at the rotunda the procession will pause at the grave of Albert J. Lentz, first Adams county soldier to die in action in France, and a floral wreath will be placed at the Lentz marker by Major Calvin Gilbert, 99 Gettysburg's only surviving Civil war veteran and the oldest veteran in Adams county.

Under the direction of Chief Marshall LeRoy H. Winebrenner and his aides, William Timmins and Henry Carbaugh, the parade will form on West High street between Baltimore and South Washington streets and will move at 2:30 o'clock to Chambersburg street over South (Continued on Page Seven)

HAINES LOSES BID FOR FIFTH CONGRESSIONAL TERM TO GROSS

Congressman Harry L. Haines, Red Lion, democratic candidate for re-election to congress from the twenty-second district for his fifth consecutive term, was defeated by Chester H. Gross, Manchester R. D., York county, by a margin of 875 votes on the basis of complete unofficial returns from the three counties. More than 110,000 were cast in the three-county congressional contest.

Carrying York county by a margin of 2,116, Congressman Haines trailed in both Adams and Franklin counties where Gross, the republican nominee, rolled up a lead of 2,991 votes.

Although Congressman Haines led his ticket in Adams county with a total of 7,186 votes it was in this county that he received his most severe reversal, with Gross receiving a majority of 1,716. The republican candidate's lead in Franklin county was 1,275.

A tabulation of the district congressional vote, by counties follows:

	Adams	Franklin	York
Haines	7,186	8,902	12,482
Gross	7,186	8,902	12,482
Gross' lead			875

Results of the congressional contest remained in doubt until the last districts were reported in the three counties this morning.

Gross, with other republican candidates, took an early lead in Adams county returns and held a comfortable advantage here throughout the night, but early majorities reported for him in Franklin county were cut (Continued on Page Two)

County Pays 25c For Each Ballot

Tuesday's general election cost Adams county about 25 cents for each of the more than 16,200 votes cast, a compilation of costs showed at the court house today.

The largest single item of expense was the pay of the election officers and rental of voting places which amounted to $2,590.47. Publishing of the election proclamation, printing of ballots, election supplies, delivery of the ballots and other costs made up the balance.

2 MOTORISTS CHARGED

State motor policemen from the Gettysburg substation today filed informations against Walter T. Mehrling, 43 South street, before Justice of the Peace William D. Brown, Hunterstown, alleging a bad pass, and against Ray A. Vindinghoff, 59 East Market street, York, for disobeying an Abbottstown stop sign. The latter information was laid before Justice of the Peace C. S. Straley, New Oxford.

UPHOLDS RIGHT OF SHELLEY TO CONDUCT PROBE

Harrisburg, Nov. 9 (AP)—Judge Paul N. Schaeffer today in Dauphin county court upheld the right of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley to present campaign charges involving high democrats to the Dauphin county grand jury.

Judge Schaeffer affirmed his order of August 8 in which the judge dismissed the petition of Attorney General Guy K. Bard to supersede the district attorney in the case which has been in and out of the courts since the spring primary.

Bard challenged the right of Shelley, a republican, to make the grand jury investigation claiming he was actuated by political motives.

The supreme court upheld Judge Schaeffer's decision holding that Bard was personally disqualified to supersede Shelley because the attorney general was directly responsible to Governor Earle, one of those named in Shelley's petition.

BISHOP BROWN TO PREACH HERE

Sacrament of Confirmation in the Memorial church of the Prince of Peace, Gettysburg, at 7:30 p. m. Friday, November 11, according to an announcement made by the Rev. Robert H. Thomas, 3rd, vicar of the church.

The service has been specially arranged for Armistice Day by the Rev. Mr. Thomas and an invitation has been extended to members of the American Legion and the auxiliary to attend. The service will consist of evening prayer in a shortened form and will be followed by the confirmation service at which time the candidates will be presented by the Rev. Mr. Thomas. The bishop will preach.

Following the service a reception for the bishop and the newly confirmed church members will be held in the parish house adjoining the church. An invitation is extended to the public to attend both service and reception.

Democrats lost their majority in the state legislature and were left with only a narrow margin of control in Pennsylvania's 34-man congressional delegation.

Governor George H. Earle who brought in a "little new deal" four years ago, after 40 years of republican state control, lost by 370,000 votes his fight to win the senate seat held by the silver-haired republican veteran, James J. Davis.

S.U.V. TO HOLD ANNUAL FETE

The eighth annual banquet of the Past Commanders and Past Presidents association of the south central district of Pennsylvania of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil war will be held in the Hotel Gettysburg on Saturday evening, November 19. The affair will begin at 6:30 o'clock.

This date marks the 75th anniversary of the dedication of the National cemetery here by President Abraham Lincoln in 1863.

The committee planning the banquet program has secured Frederick Godcharov, of Milton, an historian, as speaker. E. F. Strausbaugh is chairman of the committee.

W. L. Anderson, of Roxbury, Massachusetts, national commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, is expected to attend. Others who have been invited to come here are Mrs. Anne Lokyer, of Gerard, Ohio, national president of the auxiliary, and department officers of the allied organizations.

Following the banquet and program, "Bud" Codori's Pennsylvania Ramblers will play for dancing.

divided legislature which confronted Governor George H. Earle when he assumed office four years ago with a democratic majority in the house and a republican-controlled senate.

The lineup in the 1939 legislature: House of representatives: Republicans, 128; Democrats 80. Total membership, 208; necessary for a majority, 105. Senate, including holdovers: Democrats, 26; republicans, 24. Total membership, 50; necessary for a majority, 26.

26 Seats at Stake

Of the 26 senate seats at stake the republicans elected 18 and the democrats eight. The holdover senators are democrats, 18, and republicans, six.

The veteran republican Senator Samuel W. Salus, of Philadelphia, lost by 93 votes to Herbert S. Levin, democrat. He said he had no present intention of contesting the election.

While the democrats held a one-vote majority in the senate, the membership included independent Anthony Cavalcante, of Fayette, who frequently has differed with the Earle administration.

As the democrats nominally stayed in power in the senate, they lost several of their key men. President Pro Tempore Harvey Huffman, Monroe, was defeated by Montgomery F. Crowe, republican, and Edward J. Thompson, Centre, chairman of the race wire inquiry, lost to A. H. Letzler, republican.

Republicans suffered the loss of a veteran leader, Senator Samuel W. Salus. He was eliminated by Herbert Levin, Philadelphia democrat.

House Leaders Re-Elected

The republican party held onto the seat vacated by the recent death of State Senator John Homsher, of Lancaster county. The Senate dean's son, Frederick L. Homsher, was elected to serve out the term expiring in 1940.

Both republican and democratic party leaders were re-elected in the house. They include republican floor leader Ellwood Turner, of Delaware county, and Herbert B. Cohen, of York, who also is chairman of the house campaign charges committee.

Republicans strengthened their house delegations of at least 27 counties. They broke into the hitherto solidly democratic ranks of the Allegheny county bloc of 29, and won 16 of Philadelphia's 38 seats, where they had held only three.

Counties where the republicans increased their legislative strength included Adams, Allegheny, Beaver, Bedford, Berks, Butler, Centre, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Erie, Franklin, Lackawanna, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, Mercer, Montgomery, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, York, Armstrong and Westmoreland.

DEATHS

Mrs. Amelia Catherine Plowman. Mrs. Amelia Catherine Plowman, widow of Dr. M. S. Plowman, one of the oldest residents of Hanover, died Tuesday morning at 12:40 o'clock at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Gitt, 29 Baltimore street, Hanover. She was aged 90 years.

Mrs. Plowman had been in declining health for the past six months and during the last two months had been confined to bed. Mrs. Plowman was a daughter of the late Luther and Susan Carl Weigle, and was born October 6, 1848. Her husband preceded her in death about 35 years ago. She was a faithful member of St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. George N. Gitt; one sister, Mrs. Frank A. Conrad, both of Hanover; three grandchildren, Walter S. Plowman, Hanover; Mrs. Louis Fox, York; and Mrs. Leroy Winebrenner, Gettysburg; and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral Thursday morning from her late residence. Services at 10 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. John S. Tome, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church. Burial in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wetzel. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wetzel, 76, died Tuesday morning at her home in Baltimore from a complication of diseases.

She was a daughter of the late Smith and Miranda (Perguson) Flohr and was born near Emmitsburg.

Surviving are four children, August Wetzel, Norman Wetzel, Mrs. Charles Miller and Erving Wetzel, all of near Emmitsburg. Eleven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services Thursday morning at 9 o'clock with a mass at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Emmitsburg, the Rev. Father O'Connor, officiating. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.

Maryland Votes Marriage Delay

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP)—Traditionally democratic Maryland appeared today to have ended four years of republican governorship with election of Herbert R. O'Connor, youthful attorney general as democratic state executive.

Voters also apparently closed down Maryland's Gretna Green at Elkton, by approval of a 48-hour lapse of time between the granting of a marriage license and wedding ceremony, and disapproved a proposal to legalize lotteries outlawed since 1867.

With returns counted from half the state's precincts, O'Connor held a majority of 43,883. The returns, from 629 of 1,289 precincts were: O'Connor 162,316; republican Governor Harry W. Nice, 118,453.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, victorious in a primary fight that brought President Roosevelt into Maryland to urge nomination of veteran Representative David J. Lewis, easily won from his republican opponent, Oscar Leser, Baltimore tax attorney.

The four democratic members of the state's congressional delegation seeking re-election apparently won their contests.

DAVIS, JAMES LEAD TICKET TO VICTORY

norship over the democratic candidate, Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, who was pledged to carry on the Earle program.

Only five counties turned in democratic majorities. They were Allegheny (Pittsburgh), Fayette and Washington, in the southwestern Pennsylvania soft coal fields, and Lackawanna and Luzerne in the northeastern anthracite district.

Pittsburgh vote disappointing. Democratic strength in the populous Pittsburgh section showed up with a much smaller majority than party leaders had expected. They had counted on votes there to cancel republican strength in and around Philadelphia. The Philadelphia republican margin was less than half the 55,000 lead party leaders had predicted.

The republican state majority passed the 225,000 figure predicted by party chieftains. Democrats had claimed a victory margin of 250,000. Both sides had said it would be a "landslide."

Tabulations around the state indicated substantial republican gains in both houses of the legislature. Twenty-five state senators were elected and an entire house of 208 representatives. Democrats have had a 34 to 15 majority in the senate, 154 to 54 in the house.

Total Vote Nears Record. The total vote passed the 3,000,000 mark expected by party leaders. It climbed steadily toward the largest vote ever recorded in Pennsylvania, the 1936 presidential when democrats gave Roosevelt 2,353,987 and republicans gave Landon 1,690,200 for a total of 4,044,187.

The "little new deal" thrust to power four years ago and pledged to fit the Roosevelt program to Pennsylvania, was the battleground on which the bitter campaign was fought.

James spearheaded the republican assault on legislation backed by Earle and passed by a democratic state legislature.

Earle campaigned "on the record" of his administration. Republican and democratic camps alike tossed into the campaign statements that candidates were "boss controlled."

A rift in democratic ranks in the name-calling days of the primaries gave republicans much of their ammunition for the campaign.

Accusations by democrats and republicans became the basis of charges of bribery, coercion and conspiracy against Earle and 13 associates.

Few Disorders

Information was prepared for investigation by a grand jury. This was blocked by appeals to the Supreme court while a special session of the legislature speeded through laws to hold up the court inquiry. A legislative committee was given power to investigate the charges first.

That inquiry—now recessed until after the election—has sat through weeks of testimony and has indicated it will make no report until its hearings are completed. The grand jury investigation has not begun.

Earle denied the charges and pictured them as a political plot to discredit his administration. Voting throughout the state generally, was quiet Tuesday although there were minor disorders in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and several other communities.

INDUSTRIAL BANKER DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Colonel Ned Arden Flood, 68, industrial banker and counsellor, died at his Park avenue home Tuesday after an extended illness.

Colonel Flood, who participated in many outstanding business reorganizations and mergers, edited a series of Chautauqua publications before entering the industrial field. He assisted in the organization of the F. W. Woolworth company and the merger of the B. F. Goodrich company with the Diamond Rubber company.

During the World War Colonel Flood represented the War department in France. After the Armistice he became vice president of the B. F. Keith theatres.

His widow and a daughter survive. Burial will be in Meadville, Pa., Friday.

HAINES LOSES TO C. H. GROSS

considerably by later returns, while word from York county throughout the night told of a Haines majority there.

The election of Gross, who has had legislative experience as a representative in the general assembly from his own district of York county, sends a republican congressman to Washington from this district for the first time since Dr. Franklin Menges, York, ended three consecutive terms in the lower house with a Haines victory in November, 1930.

G.O.P. Regains 12 Seats in Congress

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP)—Republicans rode the comeback trail today in at least 12 of Pennsylvania's congressional districts, increasing their membership in the national house from seven to 19. Democrats clung to 15 seats.

The republican resurgence in all parts of the state compensated the party doubly for its losses in the 1936 new deal sweep.

All but one of the democratic incumbents toppled Tuesday were regarded as strong adherents of President Roosevelt. Representative Gray, 27th district, had left the new deal reservation on several vital issues.

Representative Stack, of the 6th (Philadelphia) district, another democrat cool to important Roosevelt reforms, was whipped in the primary. The democrats retained the seat, however, with a victory by Francis J. Myers over the republican candidate and Stack's third party candidacy.

The other incumbent democrats beaten included: Dorsey and Drew, Philadelphia; Frey, in the predominantly agricultural Bucks-Lehigh district; Gildea, in the Schuylkill-Northumberland anthracite district; Swopes, Dauphin-Lebanon; Haines, Adams-Franklin-York; Gingery, Clearfield-Centre-Blair; Eckert, Beaver-Butler-Lawrence, and DeMuth, Pittsburgh.

Norbert James Fitzgerald, who took the democratic nomination from Representative Crosby, was beaten in the Erie-Crawford district.

Representative Boland, of Scranton, the democratic whip, won his fifth term by 4,000 votes in an anthracite county which cast 130,000 ballots. Representative Flannery, democrat, won by a similarly close margin in another anthracite county, Luzerne.

George P. Darrow, republican, defeated two years ago by representative Drew after serving 11 consecutive terms in Washington, upset Drew in the 7th (Philadelphia) district. The white-haired, Lanky Darrow was an employee of the house of representatives in the last session. The Pennsylvania house block of 34 is outranked in size only by New York.

Republicans came out of the 1936 campaign with their Pennsylvania membership whittled from 13 to 7. Tuesday's rebound landed them closer to the 1932 division of 22 republicans and 12 democrats.

STOCK MARKET HIGHER TODAY

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Wall street greeted the election returns with a sharply higher stock market today. Prices opened strong, with a particularly heavy demand for utility shares.

Blocks of several thousand shares of American Water works, National Power and Light, United corporation and other utilities changed hands at the opening with gains of as much as $1 a share in active issues.

Heavy industries also shared in the advance as the financial community looked upon the results of Tuesday's election as a trend back toward a more normal relationship between the major political parties and as a factor making for more conservative business legislation.

Bethlehem Steel opened $1.50 a share higher and Chrysler, in an initial sale of 5,000 shares, gained $1.25 a share.

PROPOSALS BY NEW DEAL WILL FACE OPPOSITION

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—Republican gains in senate and house furnished a strong indication today of stiffer opposition to administration proposals during the next congress.

Although insufficient to overturn the democratic majorities in both chambers, the additional republican seats will give new strength to the coalition of republicans and anti-Roosevelt democrats which fought many of the White House recommendations in the last two years.

The 1939-40 congress will include several men whom Mr. Roosevelt sought to defeat in democratic primaries. The opinion was general among capital politicians that this group will intensify its battle against new deal legislation.

Administration supporters were cheered, however, by the victory of James H. Fay, New York democrat, over Chairman John J. O'Connor of the house rules committee, whom the President called "one of the most effective obstructionists in the lower house."

Republicans Eye 1940

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—The republicans counted their winnings today with a wishful eye toward 1940.

For the first time since 1928 they had found pay dirt in the election booths of the nation. It was not enough to give them control of national affairs. Still, it was more than the democrats had figured they would gain.

They piled the new winnings against the thin electoral backlogs of Maine and Vermont and kindled them into a new glow of hope.

This came more from the governorships they had captured and the spirited voting their candidates had inspired than from their congressional gains. Their winnings in house and senate were not strong enough to give them more than a stage whisper of opposition to the Roosevelt program, except when coupled with dissident democrats.

Yet, whatever the election may betoken for the republicans in 1940, it may easily be set down as the date for the opening of a new era in the annals of the Roosevelt administration.

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Don't let anybody kid you about the report (not carried here) that George Marshall, the pro football boss, is thinking of buying the Brooklyn baseball Dodgers. . . . The big washing and ironing man from Washington wires that he's not only not interested, but thinks it's about time folks stopped getting cheap publicity at the expense of the daffiness boys. . . . And now there's the whisper that Minnesota Bernie Bierman is getting offers from a couple of coast colleges. . . . Sounds screwy to this corner. . . .

Backfire dept: Plenty of the West Virginia fans were carrying a peeve because the Mountaineers' coaches let Bill Dutton, all-state high school end last year at Weston, West Virginia, slip out of their fingers. . . . Seems the kid enrolled at West Virginia, came out for football, but the coaches turned thumbs down. . . . So he quit and went to Pitt, where he's doing a neat job of halfbacking Jock Sutherland's freshmen. . . . And when the Panther piebals walloped the Mountaineer youngsters, young Mr. Dutton only came through with two long touchdown gallops. . . .

Best story out of the wild and woolly week-end Syracuse enjoyed after the Orange knocked off Colgate for the first time since '24 concerned the three long-time roofers who were stopped by the law as they tried to walk out of the stadium carrying a piece of the planking they'd been sitting on. . . . "Whad'ya mean ripping up the seats?" asked the policeman. . . . "Listen, buddy," they told him, "we've sat on this piece of board for 13 years to see Syracuse win, and now nobody is going to stop us from taking it home for a souvenir." . . . P.S.—they got the board. . . . Incidentally, Dick Banger collected $56 from an alumnus for the 56 yard runback of a punt which set up the winning touchdown. . . . Seems the fellow touched "twas worth a dollar a yard."

FIRE CHIEF DYSERT.

OF CARLISLE, DIES James N. Dyser, Carlisle fire chief for the last ten years, died Tuesday night at his home, 58 Louthier street, Carlisle. He was 75 years old.

Dyser, who during the past decade has served in the combined offices of fire chief and building inspector, was injured in August, 1937, when he slipped while fighting a fire and crushed two vertebrae. Since then he had been ill, and for the greater part of the time, bed-ridden.

Dr. H. M. Jennison, University of Tennessee botanist, says the Great Smoky Mountains National Park has nearly twice as many different kinds of trees as are found in all Europe.

Republicans Sweep to Power in Dozen States; Congress Still Democratic

(By the Associated Press)

Resurgent republican strength in the midwest, New England and pivotal Pennsylvania swept the democratic party out of power in nearly a dozen states today and reversed the national political trend for the first time in a decade.

The democrats retained control of both branches of congress, but republicans were cutting sharply into their huge majorities.

After a breath-taking struggle the democrats retained New York, thus gaining a major prize in Tuesday's congressional and gubernatorial elections, but in addition to Pennsylvania they lost heavily in Ohio, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Kansas, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Michigan and were threatened with losses in Iowa.

The republicans, on the other hand, lost the Maryland governorship. In California there was a prospect of a democratic governor for the first time in 40 years. Culbert L. Olson, whom President Roosevelt endorsed as a "liberal" piled up an impressive lead over the republican incumbent, Frank F. Merriam.

Sheridan Downey, who also bore a presidential blessing, had a substantial lead over his republican opponent, Phillip Bancroft in the California senatorial race.

In Pennsylvania Arthur H. James, red-haired former coal miner and critic of the democratic administration of Governor George H. Earle, carried the republican banner to victory over Charles Alvin Jones, the democratic nominee for governor.

Earle, who ran for the senate, was defeated by Senator James J. Davis, republican and Calvin Coolidge's secretary of Labor.

Many persons considered that the Pennsylvania successes gave the republicans their most important single state victory. With its large share of electoral votes the state always is an important factor in presidential races.

Senator Bulkley Loses

Among the democratic senators defeated were McGill, of Kansas, co-author of the crop control act; Bulkley, of Ohio, Harvard classmate of the President, Brown, of New Hampshire, and Duffy, of Wisconsin, who had the President's endorsement.

Both of the country's foremost minor parties—the progressives and the farmer-laborites—suffered severely under the impact of the republican drive.

In Wisconsin, home of the progressives, Julius P. Heil, (R) Milwaukee manufacturer, defeated governor Philip F. LaFollette, leader of the progressives. In Minnesota Harold Stassen (R) had a wide lead over Governor Elmer A. Benson (F-L).

Republican gains erased from house rolls several well known names, though for the most part these democratic losses were largely among members who had come in with the Roosevelt landslides. Mrs. Nan Honeyman, of Oregon; Rep. Brooks Fletcher, of Ohio, and Rep. Harry L. Haines, of Pennsylvania, were among the losers.

Another house member who went out was Rep. John J. O'Connor, of New York, Chairman of the house rules committee. He was running as a republican after having lost the democratic nomination to James H. Fay, who had been supported by President Roosevelt in his primary drive against conservative democrats.

The apparent defeat of the $30-a-week-Thursday plan in California topped the list of state actions on referenda. In Colorado, however, the voters decided to retain their $45 a month old age pension plan, the most liberal in the nation.

To the day's excitement Kentucky made its well-precedented contribution—a series of gun fights in which a total of eight persons were killed—four of them in "bloody Harlan" county. The National Guard was summoned and vote-counting stopped there. This was the state's bloodiest election since 1933, when 18 persons were slain.

Democrats Study Trend

While some republican victories were not unexpected by democratic leaders, the latter studied the returns with extraordinary care today, both for their effect on the conduct of congress during the next two years and on the presidential campaign of 1940.

Republican strategists had put particular emphasis on winning governorships, hoping thereby to build up state organizations preparatory to 1940. Democrats had been equally zealous in trying to protect the republican territory they had taken over since 1928.

The elections of that year, which put Herbert Hoover in the White House, were the last until Tuesday in which the republican party had gained strength.

President Roosevelt went to bed at 1 a. m., without commenting on the returns, which he received with his family at Hyde Park, New York.

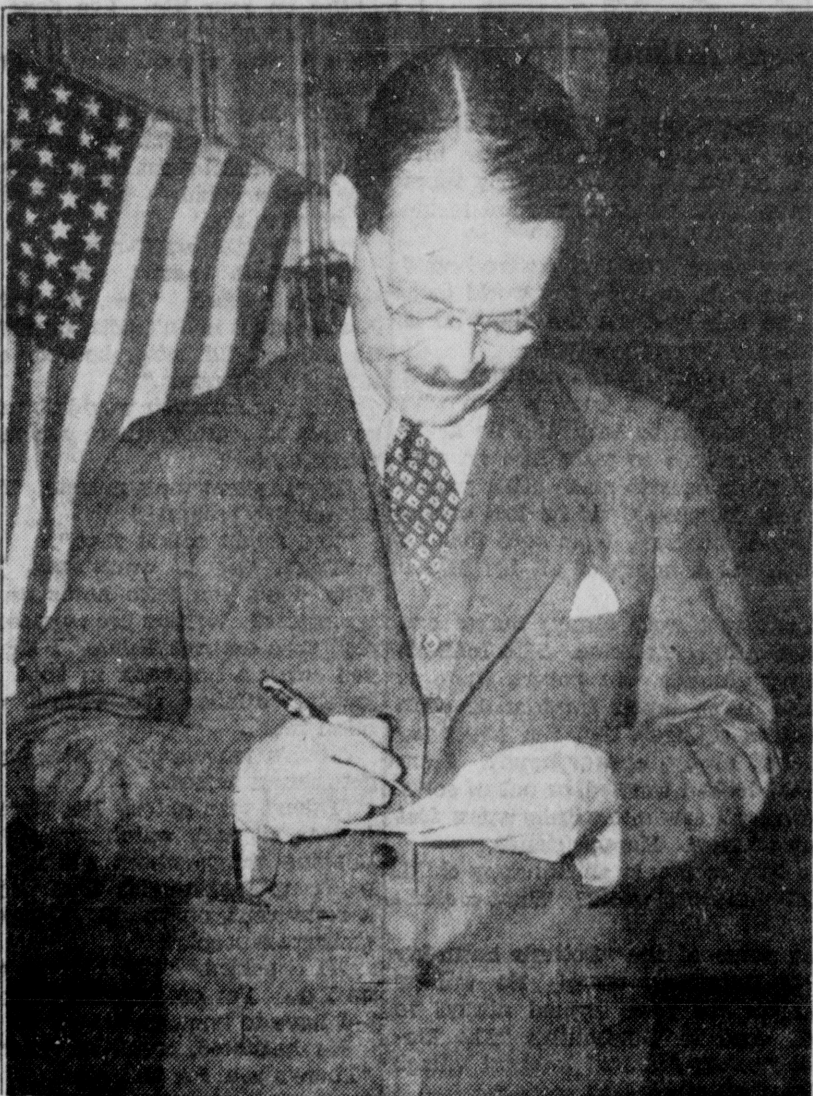

New York, with its huge block of electoral votes and its national personalities, furnished one of the most exciting races—that between veteran Governor Herbert H. Lehman (D) and young Thomas E. Dewey (R), nemesis of Manhattan racketeers.

Lehman's victory, after four hours of see-sawing returns, dampened Dewey's prospects as a republican presidential hopeful in 1940. Many of Dewey's friends, however, said he was by no means out of that battle. At the same time it brightened the 1940 chances of other republican winners of major senate seats and governorships.

Among these were Robert A. Taft, son of the former President, who was elected senator in Ohio, and Leverett Saltonstall, who defeated James Curley (D) for governor of Massachusetts.

Besides Massachusetts, the democrats lost two other New England governorships. In Connecticut, a sizable socialist vote helped defeat the scholarly Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, who will be succeeded by Raymond Baldwin. William H. Vanderbilt (R), descendant of the famous Commodore, unseated Gov. Robert E. Quinn in Rhode Island.

Senator Wagner Wins

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D-NY), author of much of the new deal social and labor legislation, was re-elected, as was his running mate, Rep. James M. Mead, who sought the seat of the late Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Mr. Roosevelt had endorsed them, but another presidential favorite, red-haired Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, was defeated by republican Frank D. Fitzgerald, who campaigned on a platform to end "industrial strife."

Criticism of Murphy's labor policies inspired President Roosevelt's spirited defense of the governor after a witness before the Dies un-American committee had accused Murphy of "treason."

In New Jersey former Senator Warren Barbour (R) staged a comeback, defeating William H. J. Ely

(D) to return to the senate seat he lost in the Roosevelt landslide of 1936.

Democratic ranks apparently held firm in Illinois where Rep. Scott W. Lucas, who campaigned as a Roosevelt supporter with an independent mind, had a commanding lead over Richard J. Lyons (R), a new deal critic.

The south remained true to its democratic traditions, and there the party elected six governors and eight senators, among them Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, senate majority leader. Two other congressional leaders, House Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, were returned.

Most democratic candidates in the Rocky mountain states were successful but further west the rule did not hold true uniformly. In Oregon, Charles A. Sprague (R) was elected governor over Henry L. Hess, who had won the democratic primary with new deal support.

The average hired man on a Kentucky farm received $27.31 monthly in 1937.

CZECH PARTIES ARE DISSOLVED

(By the Associated Press)

Two Czechoslovak political parties which before the peace of Munich had withstood nazi pressure disappeared today in the face of increasing German influence in the dismembered republic.

Former President Eduard Benes' national socialist party and the social democratic party announced their dissolution and the formation of a "movement for national collaboration and re-organization" with a foreign policy based on friendship with Germany.

The world's two wars showed increased activity. Spanish government forces reported new successes on the Catalan front in an attack designed to divert insurgent pressure from the Ebro river area dividing Catalonia from the rest of government Spain.

In China Japanese troops advanced further into the interior from their base at Hankow, announcing capture of Tuanwushan and a tightening of their pincers movement against Yochow, railway center 122 miles up the Yangtze river from Hankow.

TWO FLIERS KILLED

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—Lt. Colonel Leslie MacDill, air corps general staff officer on duty at the War department, and Private J. G. Glosner burned to death in an army combat plane which crashed in a Washington street near Bolling field, army air station. MacDill, 48, a native of Monmouth, Illinois, had been attached to the general staff here since 1935. An inquiry board began an immediate investigation.

POSTPONE ACTION ON PARKING METER PLAN

Decision regarding parking meters for Chambersburg was postponed indefinitely by borough council at its regular November meeting Monday evening when a motion for deferment of action was passed by a majority vote.

Advocating settlement of the issue immediately, Councilmen C. H. Penninger, Frank Angle and Harvey Martin voted "no" on the motion to shelve the matter.

Ten million minutes of PEACE!

On the battlefields of France during the World War, great sacrifices were made to attain the peace we celebrate each Armistice Day. Let us not forget the terrific cost of war nor underrate the blessing of peace. For twenty years — approximately 15,519,200 minutes we have enjoyed peace. May each minute grow into a year—may peace be eternal in our land!

In observance of Armistice Day, this bank will transact no business on Friday, November 11, 1938.

Here's one worth going after!

Coming at you, it looks like a million. Going away, it looks like good fortune you've missed.

A lot of fussy care went into the way it looks from the rear—you know, that's the angle from which it's oftenest seen.

Going or coming, it moves like a honey bee about its business. Better look quick if you really want to see it—one sudden "swo-o-o-sh!" and it's gone!

How about it—is this stunning 1939 Buick really as lively as it looks?

Maybe a bullet gets off faster. Maybe a rabbit can beat it on the jump or a sky-liner lead it from point to point.

But you'll never want a highway cruiser that answers quicker to the green light's "go"—or that with keener relish eats up the pleasure-packed miles.

That bonnet houses a full complement of eight cylinders, and Dynaflex cylinders at that. All four wheels dance on Buick Coil springing of stout spiraled steel; no quiver or shiver shakes the luxurious body in its flight.

You'll see the world—lots of it—for this slightly Buick now parades the passing panorama through windows with up to 413 more square inches of outlook than before.

Other things you'll like: A gearshift out of knee-way. Front wheels that "bank" the curves for you. Brakes that stop on a dime—and leave nine cents change.

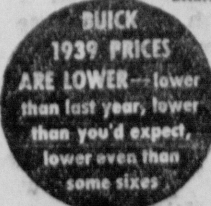

In fine—we think you'll like all of it—from its looks to the way it lives up to them. Won't you try it out—and see?

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

HAPPINESS

PERHAPS more has been written upon happiness, and how to attain it, than on almost any other topic. Why not? It's the most important attainment in life! But to gain happiness we must early learn that it doesn't come from things, but from what we carry around inside our hearts.

Happiness is a condition. I have known more people who were happy than were poor than those who have been rich, or what the world calls successful. The most successful person in this world is the one who is happy, no matter who he or she is, or whence he or she came.

Besides being a condition, happiness is a habit. It is something that one cultivates, like an appetite for certain things. I know a man who is very wealthy, but whenever I am privileged to be with him he never talks about his wealth or about what he has done to make him an outstanding figure. He talks about the things he does to make other people happy—and his great personality radiates happiness. If he lost everything that he has gained in his long life of business, I am sure that he would still be happy, for he would have the memory of all his happy acts to uphold his spirit.

This earth is strewn with beauty, because beauty always makes one happy. It pours something infinitely rich into one's being. The Indian's heaven is known as his Happy hunting grounds. In nature there is always evidence of happiness, for there is so much freedom to each inhabitant. I watch the bushy grey haired squirrels that run about my yard and up and down the trees and they always appear happy. I am sure they are. I have never seen one that looked worried, or out of sorts. They scamper and play. Only this morning I saw one within a few feet of two pigeons gathering food below my window. Happy friends.

The most unhappy picture in human life, to me, is an unhappy child. Why should any child be unhappy in this beautiful world? What a challenge to civilization!

What a picture of happiness in that poem of the "Cotter's Saturday Night!" What an immortal theme of happiness there! No wonder Burns was so greatly beloved, no wonder his face seemed always to radiate the happiness that he owned. And in Goldsmith's "The Deserted Village," can anyone ever forget "Sweet Auburn! loveliest village of the plain" * * * where humble happiness endeared each scene."

Happiness! The only food that gives nourishment to the soul. Yet it doesn't just come to one. You have to discover it somewhere within you—and then you have to give it away to hold it!

The Army Post Murders

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters

Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting the colonel's daughter on a midwestern Army post.
Charlie Spencer, my fiancé.
Adam Drew, one of the nicest men I know.

Yesterday: Adam is knocked out on the polo field. Elizabeth carries a gun in her car.

Chapter Five

"YOU—are you sure you're not hurt?" I asked Adam.

"On the contrary, it hurts like the dickens, but I'll recover. I got out from under very neatly, but one hoof caught me in the midriff and knocked my breath into the middle of next week. I was conscious but numb when young Tarzan, here, snatched me up and swung off

through the trees."

Everyone was suddenly helpless with laughter—everyone but Elizabeth.

"That's all very well," she said calmly. "But don't forget you've promised to stop at the hospital for a thorough examination before you go home. For all you know you may have a broken rib."

Adam grimaced. "I've had spills before."

"Please," I said.

He looked at me very soberly for a moment, an odd, questioning look in his brilliant eyes.

"Of course," he said gently. "But I won't stay home from the party tonight if I have to come in a wheel chair. And if anyone makes a crack about Adams' rib . . ."

The game had been abandoned, the horses led away. Somewhere close at hand a bugle broke into urgent summons. Faces turned toward the flag that floated high over headquarters.

Adam released my arm, settled his helmet and stood at salute.

Across the field the cannon crashed and the band struck up the first measured bars of the national anthem. Gracefully, slowly, the flag dipped earthward, tugging reluctantly at its ropes, floated and dipped again, lower and lower, caught at last by many hands and furled before it could touch the ground. Across the lengthening shadows on the plain the last notes of music died away.

"And so goodbye—until later," said
Adam.

"Not yet," reminded Elizabeth.
"We're going to drop you at the hospital."

We did. Adam submitted gracefully, even saluting us gaily from the door before he disappeared inside. Then, and not until then, did Elizabeth drive on.

She delivered me at the house.
Gently ordered me to rest and departed again in her little car, murmuring something about sewing and a sergeant's wife.

I wandered into the house, found the colonel's den, shabby and filled with books. I inspected the shelves, hoping to find something distracting.

There was a well-worn set of Dickens; a shelf of biography; a shelf devoted to heavy tomes on military history, science and tactics; and a stack of decorative volumes that caught my immediate interest. Howitzers, the West Point yearbooks.

Titan O.A.O.

I drew out the top one—it was three or four years old—and carried it to the Colonel's chair.

It fell open with the obedience of a book often spread at the same page, and I found myself staring at the face of Barney Nelson.

He had not changed that I would

see. The same rather withdrawn eyes, the immaculately modeled features that made him almost too handsome.

Below the picture was a brief

"Not that I mind being left" I added tardily. "Men are scarce tonight. You go in and dance."
"Not on your life. I've done my duty often enough on this post. Tonight I have a good excuse—I'm a casualty."

"How do you feel, honestly?"
"Too good to risk a change of scenery . . . All right then, honestly, Doc Moore couldn't find anything wrong with me."

"Did he take an X-ray?"
"Persistent, aren't you?" He sounded amused. "Yes, he took an X-ray, but it hadn't been developed.
So you see, I'd better be very quiet until All is Known."

"Are you sure you wouldn't rather go back to quarters where you can be comfortable?"

He was silent for a minute. "Feeling humble tonight?"

"You might call it that."

"You'll find it won't last long.
Why don't you take notes on the symptoms? Writers are supposed to capitalize on everything. I suppose you carry a notebook in that little jeweled affair. Go ahead, don't mind me."

Adam's teasing is gentle, but he gets things across.

"I don't take notes. It's more fun just to sit and watch people and imagine things about them. I've made up long stories that way—in a restaurant, on the el. I expect I embarrass people."

He chuckled. "Not half as much as I do. I'm no good at imagining
—I have to know."

He hesitated, went on smoothly.
"There's you, for instance. All during your last visit you were so busy matchmaking for Elizabeth and me," he chuckled, "that all I learned about you is that you live in Chicago with a kid sister who studies music, and that you write for a living."

Anne and Barney skipped out of the club hand in hand, singing lustily. For two or three bars Barney's rich, baritone almost drowned Anne's thin, high monotone; then he leaped to a silly falsetto as he swung her about in the path of light from the door and stepped back, hand slapping, while she executed a surprisingly capable tap dance.

They were dressed alike in white slacks and white cotton jerseys in a manner to emphasize the contrast between them. I thought they were both rather pleased with the idea that they were perfect foils for each other, but I wondered how they would like sharing the limelight.

To the breast and back of each white jersey, in the appropriate anatomical position, had been applique a crimson heart pierced by an arrow. It had been Barney's idea to let the costumes speak for themselves. No other announcement had been necessary.

FACT AND FANCY

To what I am my hands are tied,
but fancy running free Comes back at times to take me out to what I longed to be,
And lets me, as a sailor-boy, go sailing out to sea.

Sometimes when sleep disdains my plea upon my back I lie.
The dull-grim ceiling overhead
becomes a starry-sky,
And watching out for sister ships a lookout lad am I.

The timid-souls who pace the decks
and buy what merchants sell Come with a nervous little laugh
to ask if all is well,
And glad am I it falls to me consoling news to tell.

Then here's to chance, that turned my feet unto the paths I tread,
But here's to fancy that has kept
safe lodging in my head,
And gives me ships to sail upon and rolling decks to tread.

ATTAINING VALUES
AND STANDARDS

IN a not too distant past, it was considered practicing a heritage when a person marked his height on some particular doorknob on successive birthdays. Some individual with a sense of attaining values and standards set this precedent.

Examination of school experiences yields many doorposts, or standards, in the school curriculum. Health, intellectual, recreational, social, and religious standards exemplify five of these so-called doorposts. Standards will vary; they may change from year to year; they may be high in one area, low in another; they will be different in different communi-

Individual Standards

However, much standards may vary, they will be specific for individuals. For example: Arthur is buoyantly healthy and almost always appears cheerful. His intellectual experiences will show that he generally thinks opinions through before accepting them. Recreational and social past-times indicate excellent judgment in selection and observance.

On the other hand, Norman often appears morose or depressed and usually is listless. Intellectually, he accepts without question any opinion of others and is poor in self-expression. Social activities mean little to him and he completely disregards this form of recreation.

ALGER HEROES CAN'T DEFEAT B-VILLE HI'S

The old Horatio Alger theory of hard work as a necessity for success hasn't been repealed in the Biglerville area. Latest in a number of high school students to be employed in after-school-hours work is Glenn Heller, a student of the commercial department in Biglerville high school.

Young Heller has secured employment at a Biglerville printing shop, where he will work evenings after school and on Saturdays.

The office practice class of Biglerville high school is planning a trip in the near future to some large filing office. It is expected that some place in York will be visited. At present the class is assisting the school office in setting up various files.

Armistice day, November 11, is the date set for the meeting of the Parent-Teacher's association of Biglerville. Professor F. H. Gaige, of Millersburg State Teachers' college, will be the guest speaker.

Two announcements bothered Biglerville high school students this week. The first stated that the football team will play Cumberland high school Saturday afternoon, November 12, the other mentioned that the Biglerville high school had purchased 50 new books for the library. For those who like their books and don't care for football, the answer was easy. On Saturday they'd read. For those who did care for football, and not for books the answer was just as simple. But for some who prefer both, the week has been one of indecision.

Trinity Church Sets Member-Visit Date

The semi-annual every-member visitation of the Trinity Lutheran church, Arendtsville, will be conducted Sunday, November 20, the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, pastor of the church, announced today.

The Junior boys' choir of the church will meet tonight for practice at 7 p. m.

Dual Cast Named For Biglerville High School Play

In order that school dramatics may be expanded to a larger participating group of students, the play, "Lavender and Old Lace," to be presented by Biglerville high school on December 1 and 2, will be given with a dual cast, it was announced today.

In casting the play the dual method has been used throughout. The cast of characters and the players follows: Mary Anisile, played by Lena Boyer and Evelyn Lawver; Jane Hathaway, Helen Peters and Fern Heller; Ruth Thorne, Renee Shetter and Janet Carbaugh; Bernice Carlton, Marion Thomas and Jean Johnston; Carl Winfield, Bruce Nary and Junior Black.

Sophrony Trotter, Elizabeth Perrow and Virginia Baugher; Dr. Patterson, Robert Riley and Robert Hoffman; Hepsey, Jane Walter and Edith Clark; Joe Pendleton, Donald Coddington and Dean Fink; James Ball, Harold Ecker and Donald Wenk.

10-TON-TO-ACRE CROP RAISED BY FUTURE FARMERS

Biglerville's Future Farmer's of America, members of a student organization of that name, created early this year at the Biglerville high school, have proved themselves among the best farmers of the region.

Starting this spring with a small plot of ground that belonged to the school, the Future Farmers raised an acre of tomatoes that produced ten tons of the vegetables, and brought $120 into the coffers of the club.

With a membership of 26, the organization is headed by President Harold Arnold, Vice President Norman Blocher, Secretary Donald Weaver, and Treasurer Ralph Rice. Professor Cecil Snyder, head of the agriculture department of the upped-end school, is advisor for the club.

But the young farmers plan even greater successes next year. Realizing even farmers need money to buy planting and growing materials, the group plans to auction off a turkey this week.

And recognition is coming the Future Farmers way. On Tuesday, D. C. Sprague of the agricultural engineering department of Pennsylvania State college visited the farm shop at the Biglerville school.

Farm Calendar

Timely Reminders for Adams County Farmers From State College Specialists

Economical operation demands that farms be not overpowered, say agricultural engineers. Where the tractor is too large the problem is made more serious because the machinery used with it may be larger than necessary also. Overpowering is costly.

Club Members Are Active

A survey of 4-H club members attending 11 leadership training schools at the Pennsylvania State college shows that 459 are still living in the counties from which they were sent as delegates. They are engaged in more than 45 different occupations.

Use Winter Bouquets

Homes can be brightened with winter bouquets, say home management specialists. Among those lasting for several weeks are various bright berries, highly decorative seed pods, everlasting flowers and many aromatic evergreens. Containers for these should enhance instead of overshadow the beauty of the arrangements.

Calf Feeds Available

Many dry mixes have been compounded for feeding dairy calves. Some of these are in the form of pellets or cubes, report dairymen. The Cereal yeast feed used as 10 per cent of calf starters has increased growth 18 to 25 per cent.

Lime Pastures Now

Fall or early winter is a convenient season for liming pasture, say agronomists. The lime has a chance to work into the soil before spring.

Light Yolks Preferred

Hens fed liberal quantities of oats lay eggs containing pale yolks. Most markets prefer eggs of this type, according to poultrymen. The oats carry practically no yolk-coloring pigments.

GREENMOUNT 4-H CLUB HOLDS FINAL 1938 SESSION

The Greenmount 4-H club held a Halloween social Monday evening at the home of their local leader and hostess, Mrs. Fred C. Riley. The social was the final meeting of the club until spring when their duties will be taken up again. A number of games were played and enjoyed by all. Marshmallows and wieners were roasted over the open hearth of the fireplace in the summer kitchen of the Riley home. Pumpkin pie, orange cake, goblin cookies, pretzels, lemonade, and coffee also were served. The following members of the club were present: The Misses Nancy Myers, Mabel Null, Madylin Null, Anna Riley, Betty Riley, Ida Mae Felix, Jane Felix, Gladys Felix, Goldie Smith and Anna Bowling. Additional guests were Mrs. John Null, Mrs. Albert Bowling, Mrs. Harry McDonnell, Miss Ruth Smith, Mrs. Fred C. Riley, mothers of the 4-H club members and Miss Mildred L. Adams, 4-H club extension representative of Adams county.

The 1938 American soybean crop was the largest in history and put this country back into the world's export market for this product.

HOME TOWN IS JUBILANT OVER JAMES VICTORY

Plymouth, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP)—This town which borrowed a historic name burst with new pride today for a native son whose red hair and infectious grin captured the imagination of Pennsylvania.

"I feel like sleeping for a week," Arthur James told his family and friends as he finally got to bed in the wee hours of a night which sent the former breaker boy to the governor's seat and restored the republican party to power.

It's possible someone in this central Pennsylvania hard coal town of 15,000 slept — just possible, and mighty improbable.

Lake an explosion, the news of Judge James' triumph over the "little new deal" at the polls hit Plymouth. Some sixth sense of the outcome may have spread through the town ahead of time for as early as 8 p. m. throngs started to gather before James' white, frame home on Church street.

Inside the judge waited for the answer to his militant campaign to leave the superior court for the governor's chair. The returns were received by telephone from Philadelphia and Harrisburg. Soon the outcome was seen.

One roar after another came from the crowd that a special squadron of seven Wilkes-Barre police estimated at 5,000.

"We want Arthur" they yelled. "Come on out, governor."

James came out on the porch. A flare flamed from the tiny lawn. Against the chill that followed rain, the judge wrapped his brown topcoat closely around his shoulders and, typically, allowed the lower half of it to flutter open.

On his head was a battered hat with a hole in the crown from much creasing and handling. Off came the hat. James swung it in high spirals.

A two-mile long blockade of automobiles—each a foot apart—clogged the town. That many automobile horns blew incessantly. It was a deafening, joyous racket.

Inside the judge's home, perhaps 50 or 60 friends, relatives and associates milled about, a little awed by it all.

Daughter "First Lady"

The judge circulated about. His daughter, Dorothy, 24, new "first lady" of Pennsylvania, hovered nearby, swamped by greetings. The telephone wouldn't stop ringing.

For publication the judge issued a brief statement. He repeated it in a radio broadcast a short time later from his den. There was no satisfying the crowd until he came out on the porch a few more times. They hung about the windows, peering in.

About 3 a. m., the crowd left—but only to parade. It came back. The judge made a few more appearances. Finally, not so long before dawn, Plymouth returned to something like normal.

Neighboring Wilkes-Barre, a comparative "big city," was oddly quiet. A good chunk of it had moved into Plymouth, a five or six minute drive, for the evening.

Through the celebration there was considerable political talk of the future. Close friends of the new governor said, however, he probably would not comment on such things as cabinet appointments until he had a good rest.

Exchange Congratulations

Victor and vanquished were quick to exchange congratulations and messages of appreciation today when returns clinched the republican triumph. Here's what they said:

Gov. George H. Earle, in a telegram to Senator James J. Davis: "My heartiest congratulations. May you have six constructive years in the senate."

Earle, in a telegram to Governor-elect Arthur H. James: "My heartiest congratulations and deepest sympathy."

Judge James, in a telegram to Earle: "Thanks for your congratulations. The men and women of Pennsylvania have spoken."

James, in a statement: "The result in Pennsylvania provides impetus for the return of two-party government in Pennsylvania and in the United States. x x The trend toward dictatorship has been definitely halted. I am grateful x x."

Charles Alvin Jones, defeated democratic candidate for governor, telegraphed congratulations to James and declared: "The people have expressed their choice. As one devoted to democratic institutions, I freely accept their verdict."

David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman: "The republicans have won a victory."

Senator James J. Davis, in a statement:

"Once again, I pledge myself to support and defend the constitution of the United States."

Earle Blanes "General Trend" Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP)—Governor George H. Earle accepted his defeat for the United States senate today with the observation that "I probably will be able to live ten years longer because of this."

"I played polo for a number of years," he added, "and so I have been licked before—plenty."

"The governor blamed his defeat on 'a general trend to the right' in Pennsylvania and other states."

"It was due to that," he said.

Dorothy "Oversees" Father's Vote

Judge Arthur H. James, republican candidate for governor, signed the registry list prior to voting late Tuesday afternoon at Plymouth. His daughter looked on to see everything was all right.

5,000 in Throng

rather than to any local cause."

Earle said he had no plans for the future "beyond a long vacation."

"After that," he said, "I can say only that I am tremendously interested in the underprivileged and I will never give up my fight in that direction."

"Whether that fight will again take a political form, I don't know."

"Right now, I am terribly tired. What I want more than anything else is rest."

"I have been extremely fortunate in my political experience since 1932 and I honestly believe that Pennsylvania is a better place in which to live because of my administration."

The governor said he and Mrs. Earle probably would take a cruise, including Europe, and would not return for several months.

OBSERVE FIFTIETH

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. George Bunty, Hanover, are receiving congratulations on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, which the couple celebrated on Sunday. A dinner was served at their home Sunday in observance of the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Bunty were married on November 4, 1888, at the Coneywago chapel by the Rev. John B. Mallaly. Mrs. Bunty before marriage was Miss Mary A. Adams, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Adams, Littlestown. Mr. Bunty is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel Bunty, McSherrytown. They are the parents of six children: Mrs. Thomas McMahon, Mrs. Gregory Lawrence, William Bunty, Miss Regina Bunty, George E. Bunty and Miss Madeline Bunty. They also have seven grandchildren. Mr. Bunty is employed at the Heuser Cigar factory Hanover. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bunty are enjoying good health.

An elderly Japanese woman has seventeen grandsons, all fighting in China.

The sale of medicinal and pharmaceutical products in Greece increased from $4,000,000 in 1936 to $5,500,000 in 1937, an all-time high.

Marian Martin Pattern

NEW! A MATRON'S "AT-HOMER" MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9896

Here's a brand new frock to prove to the world that you can hold your own as a style-leader, both in and out of the kitchen! It's Marian Martin's latest—a style that the most critical holiday guest will admire when she invades your pantry or accompanies you on a morning drive. See—Pattern 9896 raises its waistline in braid-trimmed curves—just enough to slenderize the diaphragm! And don't you like the different way that the belt may accent this slimmest? Consider too how flattering the skirt is — and how comfortable — with its sleek hips and its long, thinning seams. Then you've choice of two becoming necklines, and puff sleeves or flared ones (which may be open!).

Pattern 9896 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric; 2 1/2 yards tie-rod.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Here are reasons why you should send for the Marian Martin pattern book today! Its styles are new and different! All are easily made at home! You have wide choice: 31 misses' smart daytime dresses, and 16 for larger women—10 selections for formal evenings—plus 26 younger-set styles from kindergarten to college age. In addition, you'll find coats, suits, blouses and skirts—also pages of lingerie, and Christmas gifts for everyone! Order now! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Send your order to The Gettysburg Times Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York N. Y.

DOCTOR'S DOLLARS

Monticello, N. Y.—For 60 years Dr. Frederick A. M. McWilliams, a horse-and-buggy physician of the old school, treated the ailing of Sullivan county, charging only 50 cents a visit. Because he lived in a small apartment, charged so little and prepared his own prescriptions, his neighbors thought him poverty-stricken. They learned today that Dr. McWilliams, who died last August, left an estate valued in surrogate's court at $250,000.

NEW HABITS

New York—Week-end jaunts from New York to Paris, London, Berlin, or Moscow will be commonplace within five years, says Eddie Rickenbacker, World war ace. He said craft flying 300 miles an hour at altitudes of 20,000 to 30,000 feet would make such excursions possible. "It's feasible today," he said. "It will be a habit in five years."

IN THE BAG

Hampshire, Ill.—Henceforth, mail delivered to this little town from the Milwaukee railroad flyer will be in the mail sacks. Three times in the past week mail sacks tossed from the flyer were drawn under the wheels by suction and much of the mail was lost. The flyer now will make a five-minute stop and the mail will be taken into the station.

FORTUNE LOST AND FOUND—

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—What would you do if you found $9,300 in currency in the street? An unidentified woman, according to police records, found that amount in $50 and $100 bills here. What did she do with it? She returned it to the owner. Mrs. Charles J. Stewart, who earlier had reported to police she lost that amount while carrying it in "a dirty pink rag purse."

HEIDLSBURG

Heidlsburg—A few relatives and friends surprised Mrs. Clarence Ecker Friday evening, who celebrated her birthday, Friday, November 4. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Slaybaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ecker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Noel, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ecker, Mr. and Mrs. John Punt, Miss Betty Jane Ecker, Gladys Ecker, Janice Ecker, Burnetta Noel, Dolores Noel, Robert Punt, Dale Ecker, Wayne Ecker and Harold Ecker.

DR. WALTERMYER GIVES ANNUAL HOLMAN LECTURE

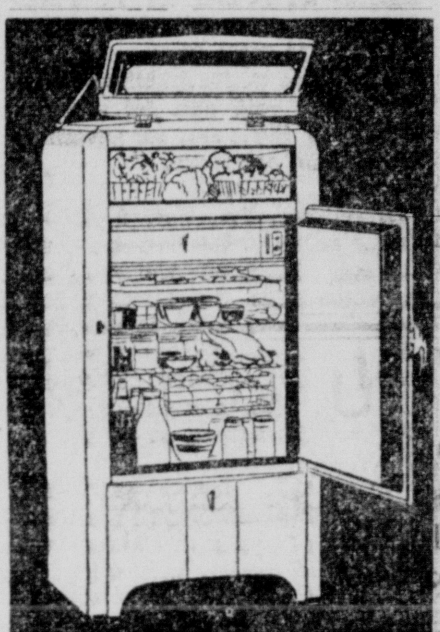

Dr. William C. Waltermyer, head of the department of English Bible of Gettysburg college, delivered the annual Holman lecture this morning at 11 o'clock in the chapel of the Lutheran Theological seminary here in which he discussed the subject, "Free Will," as treated in the eighteenth article of the Augsburg confession.

In the introduction to his address Doctor Waltermyer cited three convictions held by the Lutheran fathers and indicated in the article under consideration. He said: "They believed in the fact of free will. They declared there were definite limitations in the exercise of man's freedom. For the highest spiritual endeavor, they felt the inadequacy of any dynamic other than that which is of God."

"All three convictions have been and are controverted," he stated. "This is in itself not an evil. Conflict in thought is to be preferred to self-satisfied assurance or indifference."

The speaker then asked and argued these questions: Were the Lutheran fathers justified in affirming the fact of free will? were they right in declaring limitations in the exercise of freedom? and does philosophy agree with the fathers that from God is the only adequate dynamic for the highest moral endeavor?

In his conclusion Doctor Waltermyer stated: "The eighteenth article rightly holds that man is free. The freedom which is 'libertas minor' is sometimes irrational and may lead to evil rather than good. The confession correctly insists that the grace of God makes possible the largest measure of freedom."

the freedom sufficiently illuminated to choose the highest."

Takes Damage Suit To Supreme Court

Papers on file at the office of Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame at the court house revealed today that Mrs. Lottie K. Rudisill, Littlestown R. D., has appealed to the state Supreme court from an opinion handed down recently by Judge W. C. Sheely refusing to grant a new trial of her damage suit against Henry Cordes, West Lincoln avenue.

An Adams county jurist returned a verdict in favor of Cordes when the case was tried in court here and refused Mrs. Rudisill damages for the death of her husband, the late John Z. Rudisill, a former Littlestown mail carrier who was struck and fatally injured by the Cordes machine.

Records of the case are to be sent to the eastern district of the state court.

York Judge Signed 12 Election Orders

Judge Harney A. Gross, of York, who conducted a special election court session in the Adams county court house Tuesday while Judge W. C. Sheely presided over a similar session in Fulton county, signed exactly one dozen court orders straightening out mix-ups in registration records involving names or addresses.

Election Briefs

Wellsboro, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—The votes of two aged Civil war veterans cancelled one another Tuesday just as they did 78 years ago when the voters cast their first ballots in the Lincoln-Douglas presidential election. Here in Tioga county, Darius D. Holiday said he voted democratic as he had in 1860. In Greene county, Basil Lemley, who voted for "Honest Abe" again voted republican. Both men are nearly 100.

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—Two young men stood for more than an hour in a polling place line, then departed, red-faced, when their turn came. The polling place ordinarily is used Tuesdays for drivers' license tests.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (AP).—"What," said Moon township authorities to the county elections bureau, "do we do about a skunk under a polling booth?" "Nothing," was the reply—and that settled that.

Haverford, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—Governor Earle's home district of Lower Merion township gave him a lower vote Tuesday than it did four years ago. Yesterday in his unsuccessful race for the United States senate he polled 15 per cent of the ballots cast. In 1934, he got 26 per cent.

Kutztown, Pa., Nov. 4 (AP).—For the first time in its history, this Berks county community went republican. Judge Arthur H. James beat Charles Alvin Jones for governor 474 to 460 and James J. Davis won over Governor George H. Earle 509 to 402 for United States senator.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9 (AP).—Kentucky counted eight dead today in election day gun play, the highest toll since 1933 when 18 were killed in the November general election. Despite the apparent lack of interest during the campaign, democrats of the state turned out to give Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley a lead of more than 91,000 votes over John P. Haswell, his republican opponent on returns from 2,725 of Kentucky's 4,324 precincts. The latest tabulation gave Barkley 212,175 to Haswell's 120,304.

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—Philadelphia, where 83 per cent of the city's all time registration of 1,006,758 voters went to the polls, gave Judge Arthur H. James a plurality of 14,731 votes over Charles Alvin Jones for governor. United States Senator James J. Davis, republican candidate for re-election, won the city over Governor George Earle, the democratic nominee, by 17,067. The vote for governor was James (R), 419,030 and Jones (D), 404,299; and for United States senator, Davis (R), 422,134 and Earle (D), 405,367.

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP).—Two of the senators elected Tuesday are not likely to see congress in session except as sightseers. They are Miss Gladys Pyle, of South Dakota, and Alex G. Barry, of Oregon. Both were elected as republicans to fill terms that will expire when the new session of congress convenes in January. Each replaces a democrat.

J. Chandler Gurney, of South Dakota, and Rufus C. Holman, of Oregon, both republicans, will be sworn in for the six year terms at the opening of the new congress, picking up where Miss Pyle and Barry leave off.

The two short termers will draw about two months' pay but if they come to Washington probably will have to travel under their own steam. Mileage is allowed only to members traveling to and from a session of congress.

Meadville, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—This Crawford county community repeated a primary victory Tuesday and won the honor of being the first in Pennsylvania to report election returns. The vote in the first district reporting gave for senator: Earle 208, Davis 180; for governor: Jones 233, James 167.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (AP).—The eighth ward precinct in Pittsburgh that is the home district of Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence went republican Tuesday. The vote was, for senator: Davis 353, Earle 251; for governor: James 333, Jones 269.

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—A voting place in this Fayette county city was closed for nearly an hour Tuesday while the election board was taken into court to receive an explanation of election laws from Judge H. S. Dumbauld. The action was taken after a dispute broke out over the challenging of voters.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (AP).—The county election bureau's most embarrassing moment Tuesday was when the woman who might be described as on the stout side got stuck in a voting booth in the county building. This called for the services of a gentlemanly mechanic who eventually circumvented the difficulty.

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—One of Pennsylvania's new congressmen-elect is James E. Van Zandt, of Altoona, a former state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Van Zandt, a republican, was elected Tuesday, winning over Don Gingery, Clearfield democrat who sought re-election.

He will represent the 23rd congressional district, comprising Blair, Clearfield and Centre counties.

Van Zandt is a special passenger representative for the Pennsylvania railroad.

Des Moines, Nov. 9 (AP).—Lester J. Dickinson (R) hung tenaciously at the heels of Senator Guy M. Gillette today in an Iowa senatorial battle that seemed to necessitate almost complete tabulations from the state's 2,447 precincts to reach a decision.

With 577 precincts unreported, Gillette's lead over the former republican senator had dwindled to 1,830. Unofficial tabulations from 1,870 precincts gave Gillette 310,917 votes, to 309,087 for Dickinson.

Harrisburg, Nov. 9 (AP).—Dauphin county, stronghold of republicanism and home of former republican State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor, went down the line for the republican ticket, giving a 9,000 majority for the statewide candidates.

Easton, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—The first republican triumph in 10 years was registered Tuesday in traditionally democratic Northumberland county, where republicans made pre-election charges of democratic coercion of W.P.A. workers. Although registered democrats outnumbered register-
